Message from Fr Sean Hyland

Building on the ongoing great response to Whisperings of My Soul: I have set up a web site, which develops on part three, the case for a Divine Creator based on reason and science. I am in conversation / hoping for a feature on RTEs Nationwide programme for September where I would more formally launch the web site. My plan is to then work to get a link on as many University/College web sites as possible by Christmas. If we get the positive attention of even a small percentage of twenty something year olds, the dynamic of that generation and social media is such, that we could raise the argument for a reasoned case for a Divine Creator amongst this demographic to a national conversation by this time next year. Wouldn't that be something?

The web site is populated and is at www.whisperingsofmysoul.com.

I am asking all of you who supported the launch and promotion of the book so wonderfully, to circulate this announcement immediately and as widely as possible in particular on social media as the starting point of this initiative.

God bless

Fr Sean Hyland
